

#PLA001X planck™ 2019 AVAILABLE FOR PURCHASE 8.28.19 1/1

“Grease Monkey”

#PLA001X “Grease Monkey”

Signs silently order us. They dictate our movements: urging us to slow, speed up, merge left, veer right. One of the most omnipresent voices around us is street signage. They command our attention and direct the flow of our bodies. These metallic words stand immortal, an argument against decay: “NO PARKING, EVER”. For this piece, I re-appropriated the genre of public signs, and shifted their meaning to fit my own poetic narrative. By parodying recognizable icons such as free signs, weather labels, USPS packaging, I am able to craft a personal and affective verse.

22.5" x 47.5"
Alumalite Panel
Square Channel Aluminum
Spray-paint
Vinyl resist
Large format laser-jet stencil
re-appropriated logos
self-generated poetry
artist's head trauma

$1787.00
~~$1612.99~~
~~$1500.65~~

"I'm buried under a heap of 2D-abstract garbage.
Yelling through, not over, these symbols,
I spring out from the clutter. Light and free."

435-655-5994
info@planck.us
planck.us